1964 LIBERTAS

Liberty Central High School
Liberty, New York

DEDICATION

It is an honor for us, the class of 1964, to dedicate this yearbook to Mr. Peter Sanders, the teacher who made our senior year memorable through his interest in his students, his eagerness to help them prepare for college English courses, and his efforts to improve their learning through his developmental reading course.

To the man whose classes, enriched by his clever, unforgettable cartoons, made an indelible impression on his students, we offer a simple thank-you.

Class of 1964

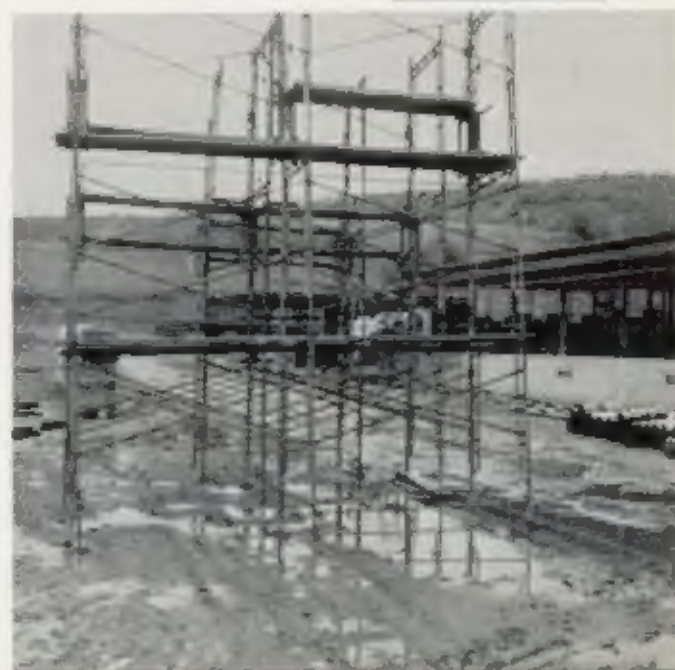

FOREWORD

A school is more than a pile of steel, concrete, and stone. It is more than just a building. It is a way of life. A new high school is especially unique, for it blends together the traditions of the old with the innovations of the new.

In this book we have attempted to provide a pictorial account of the school year, portraying the activities of the students and faculty in their new surroundings.

VARSITY

This year's varsity football team was one of the most powerful teams in the history of Liberty Central. It captured for Liberty its second consecutive U.C.A.L. championship. Despite predictions that the championship battle between the two undefeated titans, Wallkill and Liberty, would be a close contest, the Indians stunned the Panthers, crushing them 40-13 with tremendous defense and a high-powered offense.

Tanous in his moment of decision.

VARSITY

Our basketball team turned in a very presentable 7-11 record despite the many injuries which plagued it during the past season. Jim Tanous and Bob Dibble were the mainstays of the team, helping it attain this record through the furious competition in the DUSO and Village DUSO Leagues.

VARSITY

Liberty's wrestling team had a fine record this year. Although they were only 4-4 in D.U.S.O. League competition and 5-5 over-all, they did manage to win many honors in the tournaments they entered. The team was first in the D.U.S.O. Tournament, with Mike Grossman, Tom Lewis, Tom Reed, and Howard Travis winning their weight classes. These wrestlers plus Tom Myers competed in the Section 9 Tournament where Lewis, Reed, and Myers qualified for the state intersectionals while Travis placed second and Grossman, third. At the meet in Huntington, Long Island, Lewis placed third in the state finals.

Although Liberty's track team went through this year's season without winning a meet, there were several bright spots for the team. Junior Jeff Grund, who received the award for "best trackman" won the 100 and 220-yard dashes in both the Village and City DUSO meets. Clayton Yaun came close to a school record with a ten-foot leap in the pole vault while Sophomore Steve Klein almost set the record for the triple jump and the broad jump.

MUSIC COUNCIL

A newly formed organization, the Music Council, co-ordinates the musical activities of the school. The group made arrangements for the All-State music sectionals held in November, and it handled preparations for the Christmas and Spring Concerts. At the music awards assembly it presented trophies to a band member and a chorus member who showed the greatest improvement in their organizations this year.

JUNIOR HIGH GIRLS' CHORUS

At the Junior High Spring Concert, both the Girls' Chorus and the Orchestra performed several selections.

HONORARIES

SENIOR HONOR SOCIETY

B. Areson, M. Klugman, A. Himmel, Mr. Hand, Advisor, J. Rapkin, President, K. Osterhout

Some of the alumnae reminiscing during the Open House.

Members of the Senior Honor Society, Juniors and Seniors, are chosen by faculty members for their scholarship, leadership, character, and service. An Open House was held during Christmas vacation for previous Liberty graduates. In March the annual induction took place, at which fourteen new members were admitted. At the Academic Awards Assembly in May, the Honor Society presented certificates of commendation to those students who had made outstanding contributions to their various school activities.

TOP TEN SENIORS

M. Klugman, J. Rapkin, B. Deutsch, B. Areson, J. Gips, B. Carnel, K. Osterhout, S. Goldstein, A. Himmel, A. Geib.

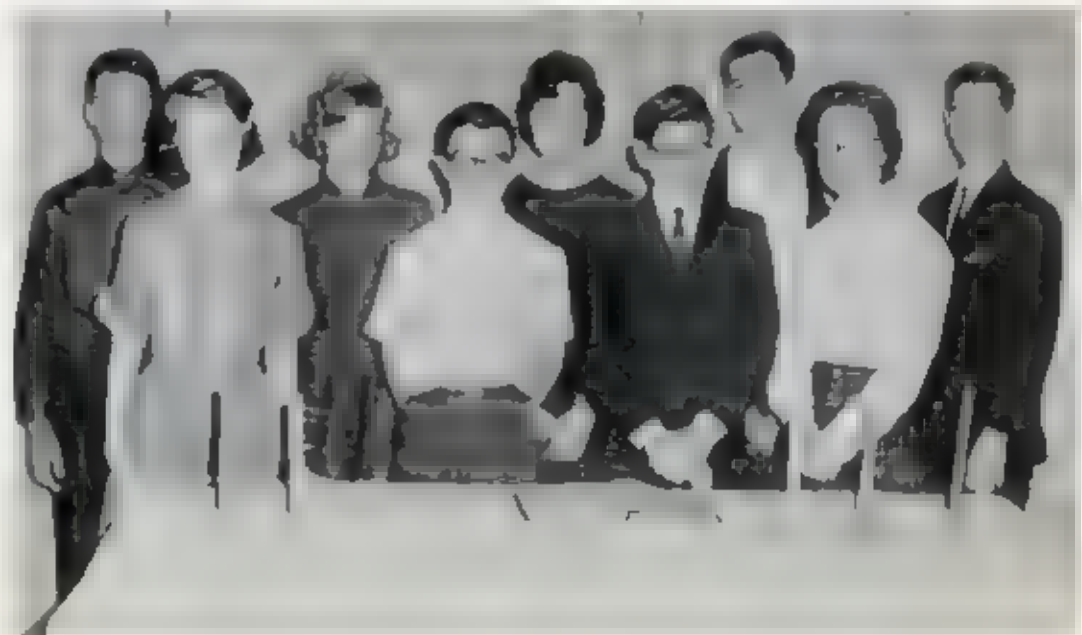

The Top Ten Seniors were honored for their academic achievement at the sixth annual Elks' banquet held in May at the Elks' Lodge. In order of rank, the Top Ten are:

Beverly Areson
Keith Osterhout
Joan Rapkin
Myron Klugman
Abraham Himmel
Barbara Carnel
Barry Deutsch
Sharon Klein
Anita Geib
Sharon Goldstein

Also honored was Jack Gips, as the Senior who took the best advantage of the academic program in Liberty.

JUNIOR HONOR SOCIETY

Members of the Junior Honor Society are eighth and ninth graders chosen for their leadership, scholarship, service, and character. At the induction ceremony in April fifteen new students were accepted into membership. David Trost, Joel Appelbaum, and Charlene Roth spoke on scholarship, character, and service, respectively.

Front Row: L. Kavleski; P. Lentricchia; J. Appelbaum; L. Poley. Back Row: S. Lerner; B. Boyd; C. Roth; M. Rothblatt; D. Trost.

HISTORY OF THE CLASS OF 1964

Kindergarten Graduation

September, 1951: We march across the pebbly playground and up the wooden steps of the Grange Hall to begin our first day of kindergarten. Mother tries to avoid a tearful session—but she can't help crying a little! We let go of her hand and busily explore the wonders of this brand new world. There are cookies and milk-swings, sandboxes, and see-saws; many friends; many fights; and just as many "make-ups." Rosemary, do you remember when John David Clements bit you? Did you ever get him back? Then there are smocks for those gooey finger-painting sessions and our own special rugs for rest period. Finally, we are all "adjusted" and ready for first grade.

Beva

Nina, Linda, Carole
and George

Orrin and Joan

September, 1952: Run! Run! Run! Stop! Stop! Stop! Oh! OH! Oh!! We are first graders! We each have a card on our desk with our whole name written out on it. Soon, we'll be able to spell it ourselves—without looking! We make still more friends this year: Dick, Jane, Sally, and Spot! We battle the lunch line each noon; it's quite a job for us to see over the top of the tray rack! Some of us live in mortal terror of that "spanking machine" in Mr. Panebaker's office. By the way, have any of Pat's girl-gang been terrorizing John Elliott on the playground lately?

Mrs. Prettyman's first grade

Ronni's birthday party.

September, 1954: Third grade: chicken-coops, broken heaters, getting warm again over in the band-room. We learn to write script and count change, but will we ever be able to tell time? Towards spring, we picnic at Neversink Dam. Marbles are big this year and many of the boys are out shooting them. Meanwhile Pat's gang have graduated to stealing the boys' marbles . . . especially John's!

September, 1957: The final plateau of grade school—sixth grade. We are junior-grade seniors. Remember the clubs this year? "The Silver Eagles," "Horowitz's Hackers," and "Stillson's Slaves." We go theatrical with Eugene starring in "Hansel and Gretel." Hedy and Steve are mother and father—respectively. And don't forget the class plays!

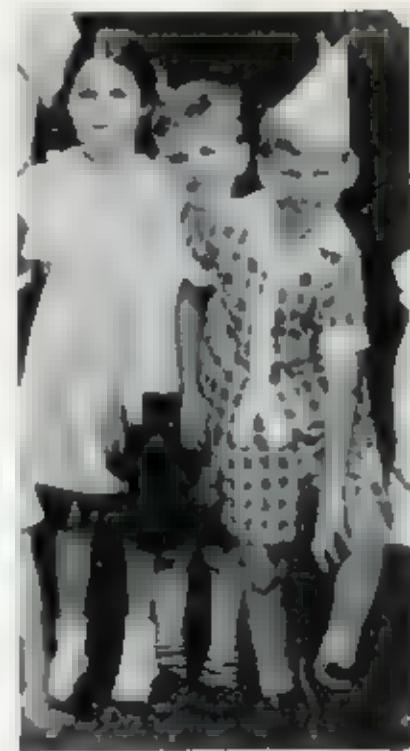

Then there are those miscellaneous grade-school memories. The marionette shows which we couldn't hear and hardly saw from our back-row seats. The scooter races in gym. "Show and Tell" every Monday. The pet and hobby shows. The hilly playground, hopscotch, the "onesie-tvosie" tournaments. The Senior Class plays which lasted all afternoon—until Mr. Panebaker got wise. Those rainy-day noon-times when we would write all over the blackboards or listen to Linda Henry read us "Uncle Wiggily" stories. Remember drawing pictures of "what we did last summer" for six years of art? Or those eternal "open-house" days when we would hold our breath and cross our fingers until our mothers would finally leave? And how we loved to pass out silver to those "little" underclassmen in the lunch line.

The Parochial school class.

Nina and Linda

Joan, Lyman Mark

President Klugman

September, 1958: Myron starts his political career. Now that we are seventh-graders, our lives are ruled by the bells. We get our first assignment books and think they're pretty nice. We depend on our red handbooks to keep us from getting lost on the second floor. But will we ever learn to open these crazy lockers?

Then there is New York State cit. ed. We can locate every town from Horseheads to Hicksville! Remember Mrs. Yates' quiet-bell? And this year's art, home ec., and shop classes? The girls learn to make lumpy icing and to sew crooked seams. Keith spends his ten weeks in shop producing the smoothest piece of clay ever molded! Our cit. ed. and English classes present a Sullivan County history pageant, and we begin to hear the new school proposal being tossed about.

September, 1959: Eighth grade: Most of us become Mr. Burke's pupils this year; a few become his students. We find ourselves strangely attracted to the clock in Room 16. "Time will pass, will you?" Keith makes a planter in shop. But he wastes so much solder that Mr. Burnham makes him bring his own! Do you remember when Barbara Camel sparked up the Junior Honor Society assembly? And when we had Noon-time dancing in the gym? And when the lunch hour really lasted an hour?

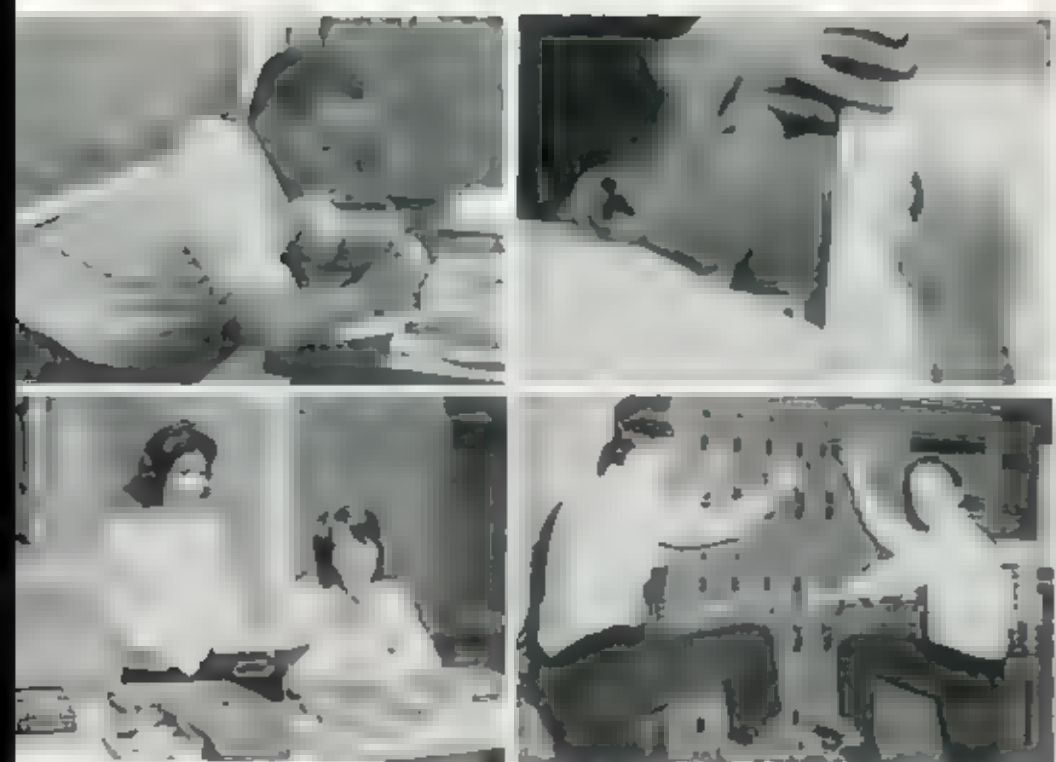

Sixth grade graduation.

Eighth grade fashion show with Bobby, Dave, Danny, and Eric.

September, 1960: Senior high, here we are! Our first class dance: "Spring Comes Running." Miss Johnson's English class produces "The Valiant" with Jackie Gips in the chaplain's role.

September, 1961: Sophomores! Biology! How we tremble at our first earth-worm dissection! But the girls manage to stand up better than the boys. How about that, Doctor Whiffen? By May, we're all out for blood—equipped with do-it-yourself lancets. We struggle through Julius Caesar with Mr. Dye—who's doing some writing himself this year. Do you recall his fairy tale "Jack and the Bumen stock"? We present "Time for '64" and most of us think it is!

September, 1962: Our last year in the old school! How eagerly we await the new one with its swimming pool, tennis courts, hair dryers, and all-weather canopy! We take the football concession on and get hoarse yelling about our "Hot dogs! Cocoa!" Almost 18 is a big success with Mark and Jody taking the leads. The "South Seas Serenade" attracts a student crowd with its tropical motif and "The Graduates." When our coveted class rings arrive, we spend three days nonchalantly holding our hands at eye level!

September, 1963: Ha! mighty seniors! We squeeze through to our quota in a frenzied magazine drive. "Death of a Salesman" has a two-night stand with John Skinner leading as Willy. Nina does a nice job as his wife but she does get a little confused about the party after the PLAY. Of course, Orrin has quite a job mastering his lines.

In April we gather at the Hotel Lenape for our Senior banquet. We hear the statistical abstracts of U.S. education and a new singing group, "The Seniors," with its female tenors. Steve Blank's "broken shoulder," Steve Verber's cigar, and Tom Finn's revelation of Mr. McCarty's "pyramid" highlight the evening.

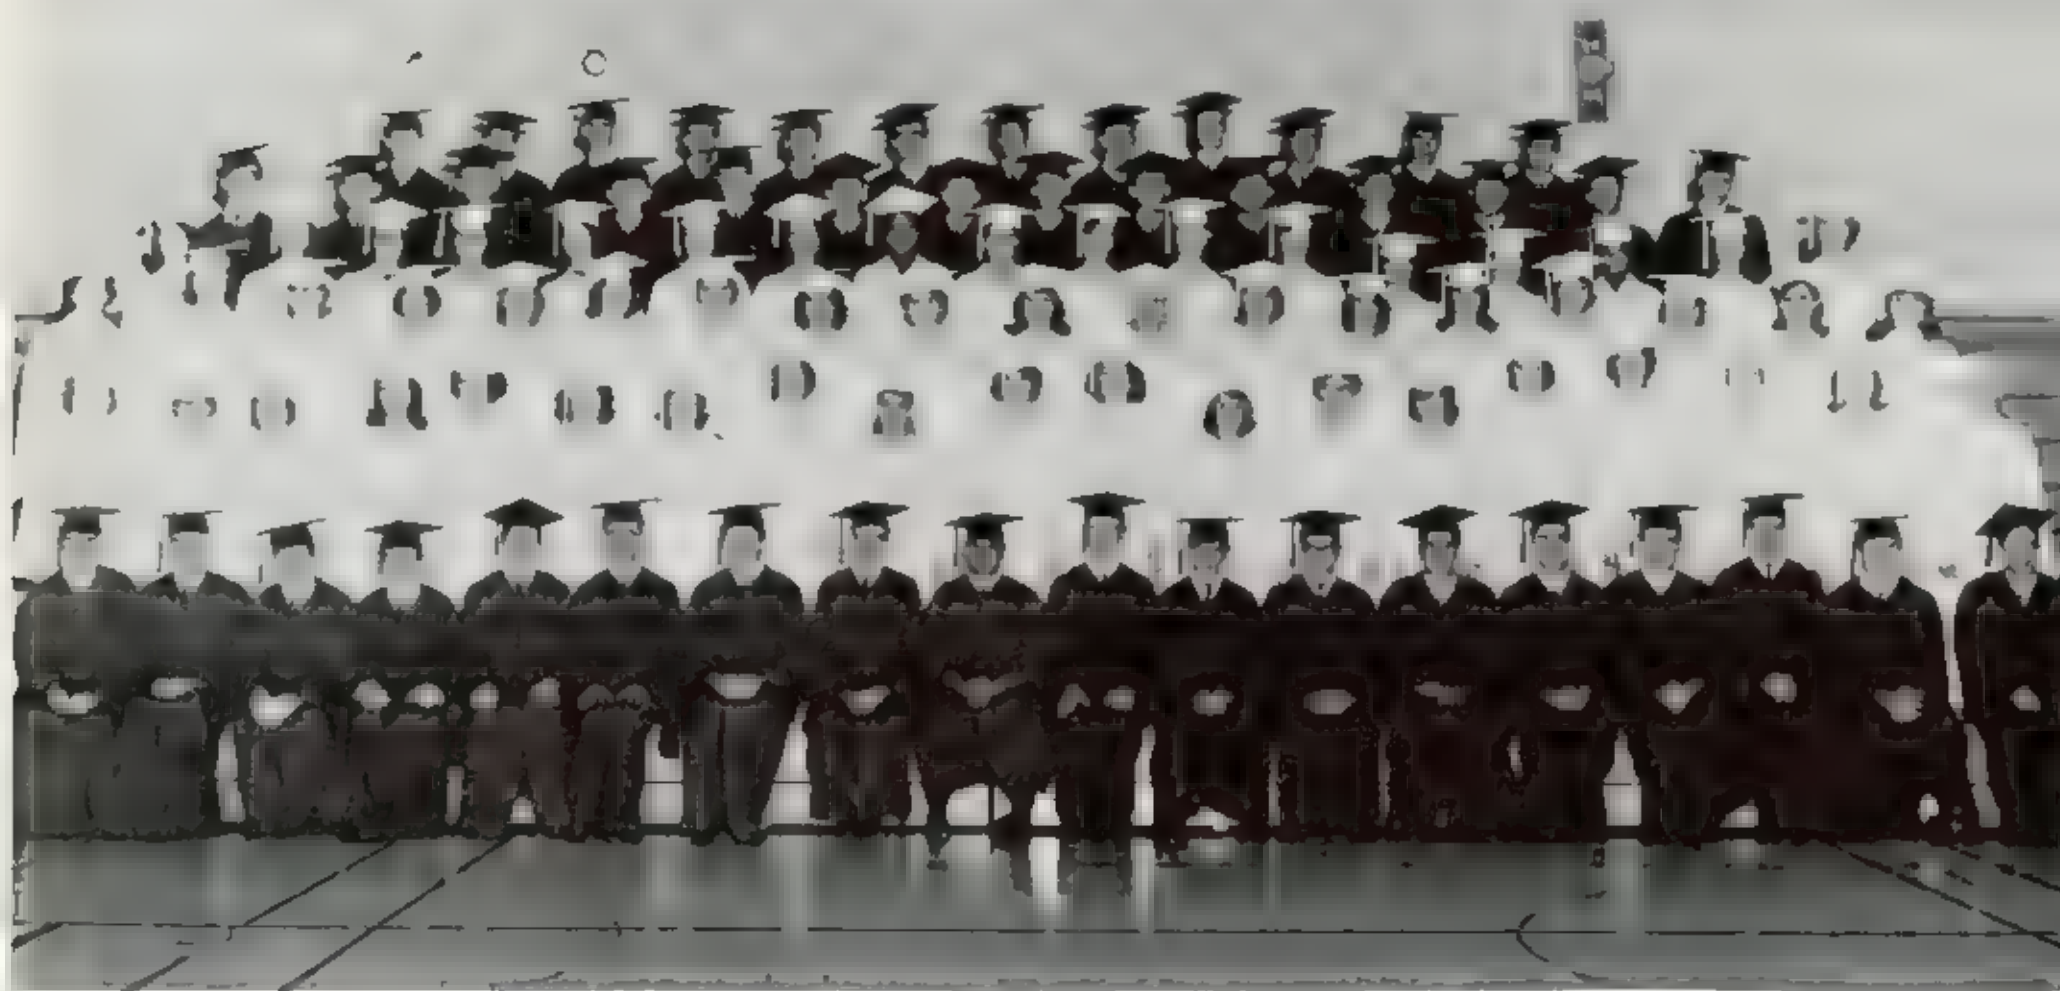

More of our senior year: Front-row assembly seats. Yearbook pictures. Christmas Dance. Libertas subscriptions. Abandoned basketball concession. Regents scholarship. Keith's scholarships. Honor Society. Honor Society pictures. More Honor Society pictures. Graduation announcements. Senior cards. Senior Day with sunglasses, hair-bows, and white outfits.

June, 1964: THE month is here! Only fourteen days left for review! Naturally, everyone spends every extra minute poring over his books. But we do take time out for the prom. A Night in Camelot. For three weeks, Sylvia greets every fellow Senior with, 'Do you have any old sheets?' Thanks to her hard work (and Mr. Beck's), the peanut-butter-and-jelly atmosphere of the cafeteria assumes a romantic medieval splendor. The couples dance to the music of the Ben Walker Orchestra, and Joan Cray reigns as Queen of the transient kingdom. A one-week countdown follows and then . . . D-Day! Exams are upon us! Many of us approach the English final, laughing—hysterically! When we come out alive we suspect we have just created the Eighth Wonder of the World. When we pass, we know we have!

June 23, 1964: Graduation practice. We begin promptly at 9:00 (well, 9:30). Everyone still wonders how Hedy and Don ever managed their "partnership." And we see a new side of Mr. Panebaker as he amuses us with his emphatic stage directions.

June 24, 1964: THE day! We pick up report cards, press gowns, make last-minute party arrangements and WAIT. . . Seven fifteen: We meet in the gym for a thirty-minute picture. (We pose for twenty-five minutes and take pictures for five) . . . Seven fifty-five: We take the long walk down the corridor to the auditorium, and Linda D. cries a little. We all cry a little—in our hearts. "Pomp and Circumstance." Left . . . Left . . . Left. Keith's salutatory. Myron's address. Speaker Thomas's four-point plan. Beverly's valedictory. THE diplomas. "Pomp and Chivalry." Left . . . Left . . . Left. Left . . . Gone!
